Fact Sheet: About the American School Bus Council

Formed in 2006, the American School Bus Council represents a unified voice of the school transportation industry, including state transportation officials, public and private transportation providers and the manufacturing segment – all representing more than 450,000 yellow school buses transporting 25 million children to and from school each day. The American School Bus Council is committed to supporting and providing safe, effective, efficient and healthy transportation for our nation's schoolchildren.

Representing more than 625,000 school bus industry professionals, the American School Bus Council's mission is to educate parents, school officials and lawmakers about the essential role the yellow school bus plays in the safety, health, security and readiness of America's schoolchildren. The Council advocates for school transportation funding and advances industry standards on driver training, clean diesel technology and safety measures that exceed state and federal law.

Importantly, the Council also informs legislators and parents about the advantages of dedicated school bus transportation and what can be done to provide that safety and security to more of our children.

The members of the American School Bus Council include major school bus manufacturers, state officials in charge of coordinating transportation of students, public school officials, and private transportation providers. Organizations and companies involved include the National Association for Pupil Transportation (NAPT), National Association of State Directors of Pupil Transportation Services (NASDPTS), National School Transportation Association (NSTA), Bluebird Corp. of Fort Valley, Ga., IC Corporation of Warrenville, Ill., and Thomas Built Buses of High Point, N.C.
